To
GEORGE STEPHENS,
a loyal friend and worthy representative of the University, this book is dedicated.

George Stephens

George Stephens.

BORN in Guilford County, April 8th, 1873, of Quaker ancestry, son of Addison and Lydia Lambeth Stephens. Prepared for college at Oak Ridge Institute. Entered the University of North Carolina in 1892 and was graduated with the degree of Ph. B., in 1896. While at the University, Mr. Stephens was president of the Young Men's Christian Association, president of the Athletic Association, undergraduate member of the Athletic Advisory Committee, member of the Dialectic Literary Society, the Sigma Nu Fraternity, and the Order of Gimghouls.

The religious earnestness of Mr. Stephens was blended with a frank and hearty interest in every phase of student life. His practical Christianity exerted the best influence, because he was "as diligent in business" as he was "fervent in spirit." His services were effective because he put businesslike methods into the students' religious organization, and helped us to see that Christianity and manliness are one.

Mr. Stephens stands as the advocate of pure athletics in the University. His mere presence on the field was an assurance of a clean game. He made the varsity baseball team in his Freshman year and for four years was the life of the team. As a pitcher, he had few superiors. His reputation was more than local. When the baseball team of the University of Virginia entered the games with Yale, Harvard, and others at the World's Fair in 1896, the Virginia team borrowed Mr. Stephens, and he won every game he pitched, placing Virginia second. On the football team Mr. Stephens was an ideal halfback—one of the strongest and most aggressive players that ever represented the University. Since graduating, he has represented the University as a member of the Arbitration Committee in settling intercollegiate differences regarding athletics.

In 1896 Mr. Stephens located in Charlotte and engaged in the real estate and insurance business. In 1900 he effected the organization of the Piedmont Realty Company, a real estate corporation, of which he is now vice-president and director.

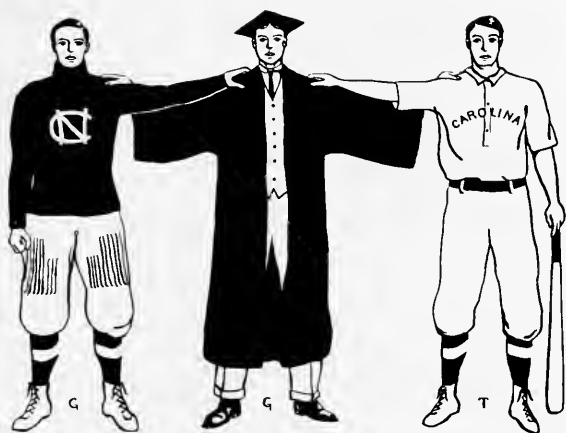

In 1901 Mr. Stephens was interested in organizing the Southern States Trust Company, a banking institution, and was elected vice-president. In 1902 he was elected to the office of president, and now gives his time to the duties of the position. The Southern States Trust Company is an organization of the younger and more progressive business men of the State—men who have already achieved success in their respective lines of work, yet are young enough to have their best years before them.

In the Young Men's Christian Association Mr. Stephens renders valuable service as a member of the North Carolina State Executive Committee, and a director of the Charlotte Association. On December 9th, 1902, Mr. Stephens was married to Miss Sophie Myers, of Charlotte.

He was elected a trustee of the University by the last Legislature. From his well-known ability as a business man, we feel that the University will receive much benefit from his election.

WOOLLEN ROSS

The Class of Nineteen-Three.

IT HAS become my duty to write a history of the present Senior Class. Did I say duty instead of privilege? If so, it was because of my inability to do justice to the subject. If this task could be postponed for half a century so that the members of the class could have time to show some of the changes wrought in their lives during the four years spent here, this history could be written with so much more satisfaction as well as accuracy. By far the most interesting and important part of our history can only be written when these changes have had time to develop themselves. But so long as it must be written now, we can only give a few trivial incidents of our life here, many of which have no significance as to what the class, as a class, has done or can do.

Well-nigh four years have passed since the Class of '03 came into existence as a class. And even though, at the beginning, four years seemed a long time to us (to say nothing of the other troubles common to all Freshmen), we are forced, at this stage of our college life, to say, with those who have gone before us, that it has been the shortest four years we ever spent; time does not pass slowly to the busy man. This time, though seemingly short, has not failed to bring some changes which we can already discern. At first we were nearly one hundred and fifty strong, but now we number a trifle less than half that many. A certain class then in college told us that we were fresh, and we are not disposed to deny the charge. Neither are we disposed to deny that many of us, be it said to the discredit of a few members of the class above referred to, fared as Freshmen before us had been accustomed to faring. But the Class of '03 leaves here feeling that it has contributed something to a college spirit which will, in the near future, if it has not already, become sufficiently strong to shield the Freshmen.

But to go back a little in our story, we feel perfectly safe in asserting that there is not a man among us who does not remember, and will not continue to remember, the feeling he had when he first reached the University. It was an indescribable sort of feeling, and we might say, not entirely free from unpleasantness. We too had heard of some of the trials through which, according to the traditions of all colleges, Freshmen are called upon to pass. But with the help of some who proved to be our friends during that year, together with a very pleasant though seemingly short vacation, we rallied sufficiently to enjoy another feeling which we all remember, that arising from Sophhood. Since then our college days have passed much more evenly, and with fewer particular events around which our memories cluster.

Now our college life is nearing its end. Only a few short months are to pass before commencement, when the time shall have come for the Class of '03 to separate, never to meet as a class again. We all are looking forward to the time when we shall begin our life's work, but we would be untrue to our feelings if we failed to express a lingering regret that the time of our separation is so near at hand. We have learned to feel that sense of union which always results from a common struggle. Looking back over our college days, we are forced to realize that we have not gotten all out of our stay here that was possible for us to have gotten; but on the whole, we feel that we may congratulate ourselves upon what we have done. The record of the Class of '03 is one of which no class need be ashamed. This class has furnished the Alpha Theta Phi as many members as any class in the past. In debating, its record equals that made by any previous class. And if it may claim to outstrip any or all former classes in any particular phase, that phase is athletics. Our class got out a football team in our Fresh year which won the championship over all the other class teams in college, a thing before unheard of. And more than that, we have held that championship ever since. The Class of '03 has more men who have won "Varsity" sweaters than any one class in the past history of the University. As already stated, this is a record of which we may justly be proud; but we have done nothing more than we should have done, because ours is the largest class, and has been at each successive stage of its existence, that has been here since the reopening of the University. We have fought a good fight, and it now behooves each and every one of us to go out into the different vocations of life ever remembering that four years ago we adopted as our motto for life, "Excelsior."

“Fresh” History.

BOSS, 't won' be long tel Benny lays him down an' dees as de Quartet sez. I bin hyar eber sence befo' de war. I 'm gwine on sebenty yeres. I hab sene ebry class sence Pettigrew, what fot so hard to gib me liburty ur death. An' now, Boss, I 'm gwine tell you de truf, cos you 've heerd tell of a man gittin' strucken down fur tellin' a lie, but you ain't neber heerd tell of a man gittin' strucken down fur tellin' de truf. An' 'sides, my skull is knowed to be a ninch thick an' my body goes to Dr. Whitehead fur five dollars.

Now de truf is as to dis here fresh class. You kno' I hab neber cussed. I am as pure 'bout my mouf as a virgin. But if I cud cuss like Ed. Macdonald, I 'd sho cuss him an' his fool class. One night Ed. come to me an' to my little hous' an' sed: "Unkle Benny, you look here." So I hobbled out to de dore an' dere wuz Ed. His hair wuz all wet an' he wiped de swet offin his furred an' he sez: "Unkle Benny, dese boys has determined to make me de boss, an' I am lak Ceezer what lef' de plow to be a big tater, an' wud not be king tel de third time. So what mus' I do ter keep um at it three times?"

Then he went away, an' purty soon here cum Redbug—you kno'—what wears a long coat an' a fat crevat—him dey call Senater. He looked like he just bin babtized, er else he tu wuz wet wid swet, and he sez:

"Alas! alas! de blue sky an' de twinklin' stars betoken a rise from humble station to exalted position. Benny, I hab sed my say an' hab been anointed tel de ointment run down de flow ob my robe, so I 'm president!"

An' he passed on, and Ed. beat him out as you kno'. So Ed. he led de class wid solum faze to hab dere pickcher tuk, an' dey wuz driven frum de field angrily an' ignoramusly. But Frank (he 's my nefew, you kno',) sicked 'em on agin an' finully Ed. led 'em to victory, as did my marster's cousin, Edwin Booth, who slew Abe Lincoln as he ot tu hab slew, cos Abe wuz a mancipater, which is horrud. Well, Boss, I will say one thing fur dis class: Dere is very few what hangs ober de fence an' peeps at de baseball games. Meny is gentlemen, few is buzzards. I am ershamed fur my race when I see dem hanging ober de fence wid dem common white fellers. Sum da', Boss, ole Benny what once cud crow so nice, will lay him down an' die an' will go to de log cabin wid cracklin'-bred in all de cracks, an' a good warm shirt will kiver his shivering back. Benny Booth, he 's crowed his last.

Dialectic Society History.

THE Dialectic Literary Society began its career as "The Debating Society" in 1795, and when organized consisted of thirty members. In August following its organization, "The Debating Society" was divided, one division retaining the old name; the other was known as "The Concord Society." A year later both societies changed their names. "The Debating Society" then became the Dialectic Society and "The Concord Society" became the Philanthropic Society.

The first president of the Dialectic Society was James Mebane, who, according to the records, was a faithful member and a loyal alumnus. When the new Dialectic Hall was dedicated, fifty-three years from the time he presided as the first president, he was present and presided with Dr. Kemp P. Battle, then president of the society.

All students of the academic department were required to join one of the societies until the year 1891. Since that time membership has not been so large, but interest has been greater.

The society has for its objects to develop the oratorical and debating powers of the students, to promote useful knowledge and cultivate lasting friendship among its members. In all its proceedings it fosters truth and honesty by rigidly adhering to the honor system—the pride of every University student. Manliness and true dignity in all their phases are here developed more, perhaps, than in any other department of the University. Senator Vance once said of the Dialectic Society: "It is the most dignified body I have known this side of the United States Senate."

The career of the society has been one of usefulness to the University, to the State, and to the Nation. Among its members have been a President of the United States, members of the Cabinet, foreign ministers, State and National Senators, Representatives, Governors, Judges—in fact, men in all public and private pursuits. The society prides itself in the handsome collection of portraits of such men who were its former members.

The membership of the society this year is larger than it has been in twelve years, and interest was never greater than at present. The series of inter-society and intercollegiate debates held each year offer splendid opportunities for self-development, and the possibility of being chosen for some one of these debates is a great inducement to new students to become society members. Society honors are first honors in the University, and chief among these is the honor of representing one's society in some one of the intercollegiate debates.

In the inter-society contests with the Philanthropic Society, representatives of the Dialectic Society have shown themselves to be equal to their opponents in skill and ability, always sharing honors sparingly with them. And in the inter-collegiate debates with the universities, representatives from both the Dialectic and the Philanthropic societies working together for the glory of their institution have won for her a reputation bordering on fame.

Thus it is that the society is accomplishing immediate good. To say something of its future—of its service to the State and the Nation to be derived from the training of its members—let us hope that, in this respect, history will sometime repeat itself by bringing forth out of the society men of usefulness and honor.

The Philanthropic Literary Society—1795.

MOTTO: Virtue, Liberty, and Science.

THE Philanthropic Literary Society had its origin in "The Debating Society," organized in the University in June, 1795. In August of the same year, for some reason, the society was divided, one part becoming "The Concord Society," the other continuing under the old name. One year later, both societies changed their names. The "Debating Society" became the "Dialectic," and the "Concord" the "Philanthropic."

The Philanthropic Society, thus originated, held regular weekly meetings from 1795 until 1868, when the dark days came, and the doors of the University were closed. On the reopening in 1875, the society again resumed its meetings, and has continued to meet regularly to the present time.

The object of the society has ever been the improvement of its members in the art of debating, and in the knowledge and use of parliamentary law. It has encouraged too, in every way, the cultivation of lasting friendship and the promotion of moral and social virtues.

From their origin, the two societies have exercised a profound influence over the student-body. For many years membership in one or the other was compulsory, and almost the entire discipline of the University was in their hands. Within recent years, however, membership has been made optional, and the societies have been relieved of their duty of keeping order among the students. Under such conditions, the societies are assured an interested, working membership, and are free to turn all their energies towards developing, to the fullest extent, the talents for debate of their sons; and while not forgetting the social and moral man, most nobly has the Philanthropic Society carried on its self-imposed task. Not only has it held its own against the Dialectic in all inter-society debates, winning its full share of the laurels of victory, but colleague with the Dialectic, it has sent its debaters against those of other States, and done well its part in building up the enviable reputation of the University in the debating world.

According to a long established custom, men from the east join the Philanthropic, those from the west, the Dialectic; hence the influence of the Philanthropic Society has been more pronounced in the eastern part of our State. The greatness of that influence no one can estimate, but great as it has been, present indications point to no decrease. Basing our prophecies on the high quality of the work of the past year, we are safe in saying that, not only will the Philanthropic Society continue to hold its honored position among the students of the University, but will send out, in the future, even more men than in the past, who will mould the destiny of their State.

The Non-Frats.

LET NO ONE think when he has glanced through the YACKETY YACK at the group pictures of the several fraternities, that he has seen, face to face, the whole of the University population. He hasn't seen even the half, for there is a larger group—too large even for a picture—and must, therefore, for their representative as a class depend upon this brief article. This larger group are the non-fraternity men. Neither should the reader allow himself to fall into the erroneous notion that the fraternities have winnowed out all the wheat and only wheat, and that they have left all the chaff and only chaff. The truth is, it is not a winnowing process, neither is any such result obtained. The line of division is not drawn according to any fundamental elements of character or traits of personal worth; but is largely a matter of social inclination or custom, as the influence of personal friendships.

What we wish to make clear is, that the term "non-frat" is in no sense a reproach, but we find men wearing this title just as proudly as their fraternity classmates wear their Greek-letter pins. In fact, there are many to whom the term "non-frat" is a deliberately chosen title. These believe in the spirit of the freest possible fellowship, and upon this ground stand aloof from orders which they believe (whether correctly or incorrectly, it is not the purpose of this article to say) tend to check this spirit in its growth. There is another class—those who have never stopped "to reason why," but have cast their lot with the non-fraternity men just as naturally as the duck seeks the pond, or the lark seeks the meadow. They have as little need of fraternities as fraternities have of them. They find a brotherhood in non-fraternity ranks that suits them, and are quite content with their lot. Of course, the other fellow exists in college life, as he does everywhere else—the fellow who wishes to be in a circle where he can not go, and is rather unwelcome upon the company with which he must remain. But there are not many of this last class, and we trust their number grows less each year.

It is in college politics that the lines are most strictly drawn, and the firing most rapid between the frats and the non-frats. Unfortunately, men on both sides in these contests place party allegiance above personal worth. As a result of these contests the non-frats boast that they to-day enjoy by far the larger share of political spoils. They have the presidencies and many of the chief offices of all the academic classes. The editors-in-chief and business managers of both the Magazine and the Tarheel are non-frats. Three of the sub-m Marshals are likewise of this element.

But the proudest boast of the non-fraternity men is not the reaping of honors in college politics, but that in every phase of university life "where men rise by might of merit," non-frats are found in creditable numbers. Though the average non-fraternity man enters college without so good a preparatory training as his more fortunate fraternity friend, yet for the past three years, half of the men whose scholarship has entitled them to membership in the Alpha Theta Phi have come from the non-frats. Out of the twelve men who have represented the University in intercollegiate debates during the past three years, eleven have been non-fraternity men. For the past three commencements all but two of the commencement orators have been non-frats, and upon each of these occasions a non-frat has borne away the Mangum medal.

Upon the athletic field the record of this element is not so flattering as in intellectual contests. Still it is nothing to be ashamed of. Many of these men find abundant exercise in some employment by which they are paying their way through college, and consequently are not found upon the athletic field. But both the football and the baseball teams number among their best men some who are non-frats. Especially does last fall's football team owe much of its glory to non-frats.

In the ballroom, upon the liveryman's account-book, and at various social functions, our non-frat friend may be conspicuous only for his absence; but in every phase of college life where brawn and brain and work and manhood are the only requirements, he claims and honors a place.

Other Organizations

Alpha Theta Phi Society.

THERE shall be two times of election. The first shall be as soon as practicable after the end of the fall examinations; the second as soon as practicable after the end of the spring examinations. At each of these times the President of the Society shall present to the Registrar of the University a list of such students as he believes to be eligible for membership, including in the list all students who make bona-fide application to him to be included in the list. The Registrar shall be requested to examine the records of the several students on the list and to report as to the eligibility of each in accordance with the following requirements:

1. A student may be tested for eligibility at two periods of his college course:

(a) He may be tested when he shall have attained for the first time a credit of not less than 75 half hours.

(b) When he shall have attained for the first time a credit of 120 or more half hours.

Provided: (a) That the said 75 or more half hours, or the said 120 or more half hours shall include all work required by the catalog to the middle of the conventional Junior year or the end of the conventional Senior year, respectively, as prescribed for any cause leading to graduation.

(b) That they shall include only such work as shall have been pursued in a regular college course here, entrance credits being excluded. Moreover, the hours must be credited on the Registrar's book.

(c) That no work pursued in a regular college course here may in any case be excluded from the count.

(d) That a student is entitled to have his eligibility tested at only the two periods set forth; namely, when he shall for the first time have attained a minimum registered credit of any 75 half hours or a minimum registered credit of any 120 half hours.

2. The minimum average grade of two must be attained on the half hours listed as above required. If this grade be thus attained the candidate shall be declared eligible and must be initiated into the Society.

Students entering this University from other colleges or universities of equal rank with this University may consider grades attained at such other institution precisely as if attained in regular courses here, but must satisfy the President of the Society of the facts.

The officers of this Society shall be an Honorary President, Honorary Vice-President, a President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer.

The President, Secretary, and Treasurer constitute the executive committee. They shall be chosen at the end of each academic year, to serve for the succeeding year. The President shall have attained the highest average grade of all those students who are regularly credited with not less than 90 nor more than 120 half hours of college work.

Provided: (a) That no hours can be excluded from this count which have been taken in regular college course up to the date of the test.

(b) That no student shall count in the said 90 or more half hours any work pursued at another institution.

The Secretary shall have attained the next highest grade under the same rules and provisos.

The Treasurer shall have attained the third highest grade under the same rules and provisos.

Following are the Presidents and Secretaries since the foundation :

The Young Men's Christian Association.

THE Young Men's Christian Association is the religious organization of the University. Its purpose is to keep alive and strengthen the spiritual life of the young men who come under its influence. It aims to train and develop the powers of the student so that when he quits the student-life for the world, he will not be a mere physical and mental machine, but a well-rounded man, fit to do service for his country and his God.

To accomplish this purpose, the Association has a well organized plan of procedure. It recognizes the truth that Christian work is the great developer of Christian character and so strives to give every member something to do. It roughly divides its work into two divisions, and in one of these or both, every man may find his place. The first of these is the Christian work in the University. This includes the devotional meetings; the Bible-study classes, and personal work among the students. The second is the home and foreign mission work of the Association.

The Association holds two devotional meetings a week. One, a short prayer service, meets in the Association room on Tuesday night. The other, which we may call the popular service, meets in the College Chapel on Thursday night. These services are led by members of the Association, and during the past year have been well attended and helpful.

The personal work among the students is carried on with something of system, and offers great opportunity to the worker for building up himself and of helping his fellow students. It is needless to say the Association fosters this work in every way. As an aid, it has had under its control, the past year, a class making a special study of the method God has used in training his personal workers.

Perhaps the most encouraging feature of the work is the increased interest in Bible study. There are now three classes studying the "Life of Christ," two studying " Old Testament Characters," and one the " Acts and Epistles." These classes meet once a week and have an enrolment of sixty men. It is the earnest desire of the Association that every student of the University shall make a systematic study of the Bible.

Taking up our second division, we find the Association takes no selfish view of Christianity. It encourages, in every way, home and foreign missions. The University has been compared to a lighthouse which sends its bright beams far over the waters, but casts a dark shadow about its base. The Association, in its home missions, is striving to do something for the people living in the immediate vicinity of Chapel Hill. It sends out its members to teach in Sabbath-schools, or to hold any kind of services that may be helpful. It has now, under its direct supervision, four Sunday-schools, having an average attendance each of over thirty persons. The Association also provides leaders for the Sunday night services held at West End Chapel.

Nor does the Association, in its zeal for home missions, forget the foreign field. Throughout the year an awakened interest in foreign missions has been evidenced, and near seventy dollars has been contributed to that cause. A class, led by a student volunteer, has been studying, this year, the lives of some efficient workers in foreign fields; and this has served, not only to give students a practical knowledge of missions, but has materially helped in keeping up interest in that important course.

It does not become the Association to boast of its achievements. It is far from doing so. Having set for itself so high a purpose, its ideals must ever be so far beyond its actual attainments, that its best efforts must always seem, in a measure, failures. However, it has striven to be useful and helpful in the past, and now its hope and prayer is, that, in the future, it may more fully merit the esteem and confidence of the University and the State.

University Record.

The University Record was established in 1896 by the Faculty and students of the University. The purpose of this publication is to give a complete record of the more important events of University life. It also aims to keep the Alumni in communication with the University and thus bind them more closely to their Alma Mater. The Record is now in its eighth volume and its value to the University has been eminently demonstrated. It is issued quarterly under the management of a committee appointed by the Faculty.

Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

The Journal, established by the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society in 1884 to represent the Science Department of the University, is now in its eighteenth volume. During the term 1902-1903 some very important papers have been published. Among others might be mentioned a paper presented at the Denver meeting of the American Chemical Society, "On the Existence of a New Element Associated with Thorium," by Dr. Charles Baskerville; "New East American Thorns," by Mr. W. W. Ashe; "Arsenic Pentachloride," by Dr. Baskerville and H. H. Bennett of the Chemistry Department. This substance was prepared for the first time in the laboratory at the University of North Carolina. "Some Energy Changes Caused by a Rise in Temperature," a thesis presented for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by Mr. J. E. Mills, of the Chemistry Department, appeared this spring. The Journal is the only publication of its kind maintained in any Southern institution and is a credit to the organization which gets it out.

Football.

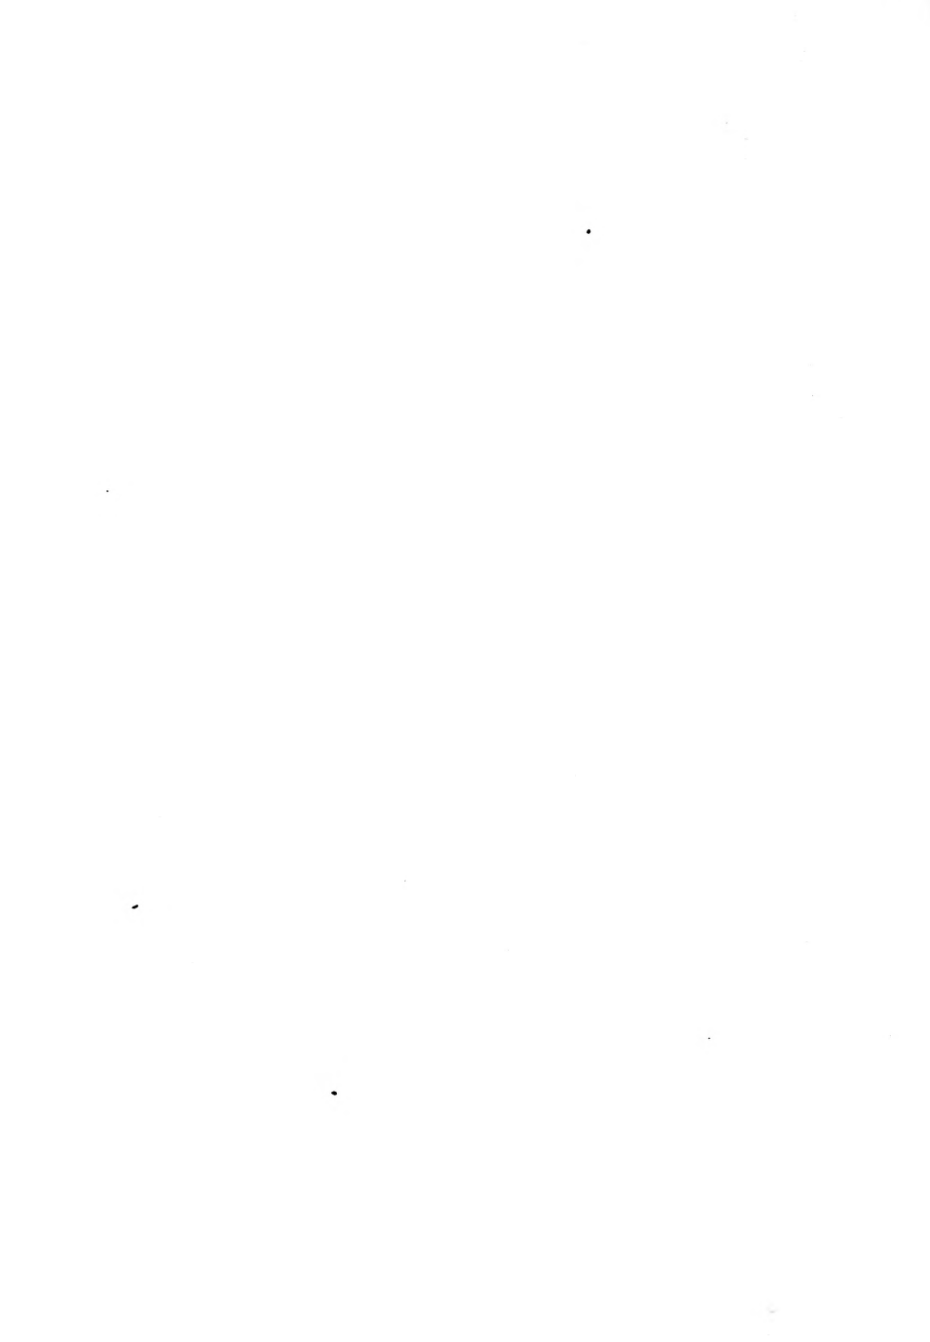

THE score tells the work of Carolina's football team of 1902. In the beginning of the season it looked as if the team would be weak; in the end it proved to be one of the best teams ever sent out from this institution. The product of this transformation was not only the hard work of the team, but the excellent work of an untiring coach and the loyal and undivided support of the student-body.

Let us glance at our team's work. Few promising men answered Coach Olecott's first call for candidates for the team. Soon, however, college spirit forced a good number on the field and work began in earnest. Guilford, Oak Ridge, and Furman all had good, "gritty" teams, but they were outclassed by Carolina. Our first interesting game was with Davidson. After the small score of 6 to 0 in 1901, the result of 27 to 0 was very satisfactory to Carolina. Then came the splendid contest with V. P. I. which resulted in a tie in favor of both sides. On the same grounds a week later we licked V. M. I. to the score of 17 to 10. As A. and M.'s team was not composed of bona-fide students, we only mention the score, 0 to 0. Then came the Georgetown game, and Carolina for her first and only time during the entire season received an honest (?) defeat. But this score was forgotten when we tied our old rivals, Virginia, on Thanksgiving Day. This game was our supreme contest, and the struggle for which all the coaching had been aimed. Virginia was confident of winning, having defeated the Indians five days beforehand. Carolina was determined to fight every inch of the ground. The score 12 to 12 tells the tale better than words.

As to the Southern championship, any man who knows anything about football knows that this lies between Virginia and Carolina. Commenting upon these teams the Washington Post says: "Carolina and Virginia were almost equal in all but aggressiveness, and Carolina was more aggressive than Virginia."

Love's Way.

In youth's blithe morn I dreamed a happy dream—
A vision of a maiden slim and tall,
Whose golden tresses held my heart in thrall,
And whose blue eyes for me alone did beam.
I dreamed that she, my love, was ever kind,
Nor sought to wound me even in playful wise
By any scornful glance from those dear eyes.
In which a tender welcome for me shined.
But ah! youth's false, mad dream—for in this day
I woo a plump brunette, to my despair,
Who mocks me, flouts me, laughs me out o' reason;
And yet, to me (I hope it is not treason)
Her merry eyes have such a witching way,
Those first-loved eyes were never half so fair.

Mr. Flaherty's Second Visit to the Hill.

(Apologies being extended profusely, as formerly.)

PATRICK O'RORY McCALLY McCARTHY! Be yez dade or only shlaping? Saints presarve us, hov' yez niver hear-rd af that thrue patrite an' frind af th' Frishmen, Francis Priston Vinalbe, th' man with th' jist-so-but-nivertheliss-I 'm-walkin'-on-eygs exprission? Wall, prop yez eyelids with a little af me las' yeer's brew over in th' corner beyant yez there an' close yez onsamely mug on th' stim af this gr-randly scinted corn-cob, which be th' way th' son af me fayther hes ben shmoking f'r th' las' twenty yeer, an' I 'll tell yez af th' Prisdint an' mebbe af a few ithers af his lootinants an' fellow agitaters who be aidin' th' young idee in sproutin'.

"You 'll remember, Pat, af me visit las' yeer to that gr-rand an' noble place, th' Univar-sity af Nor-rth Carolina, an' af me ragret at not sayin' minny af me ould frinds an' fellow tipplers, an' also af me promise to returrun an' hov' more to tell yez whin I hod done so. I 'm here, Pat, to fillful all af me promises.

"Whin I shtruck th' metrop'lis on th' occasion af me las' visit to th' Hill, what should I see but signs staring at mesilf here an' there, which said thot there was to be a massmatin' in th' Chappel. Sayin' thot th' toime f'r matin' hod arriv', as none af th' buys was in sightin' distance, I ups an' wint, Pat.

It is one af me cr-rownin' virtues, Pat, thot I never lit pass th' chanst to tell me beads f'r our illustrious Saint (bad cess to him thot he should hov' the same name as yezsilf!), an' to wish thot his wings an' tail fithers may niver be cut short. So in I wint to th' massmatin', expictin', Pat, to sae a riv'rind fayther scatterin' incinse an' Latin to th' four winds; but what was me astonishment to sae a howlin' mob af young barbarians, gesticulatin' an' swearin' at one anither like wild Injuns,

Ph'lippinos an' Cubyan sausage-grinders. Me fir-rst thought was to lave immejately if not sooner, but 't was no use, f'r me way was blocked be a big fellow who says to me in solemncholly tones,—'Prepare f'r th' wor-rst.' Suddintly there riz oop in th' front af th' mass, Vinalbe—mark, me frind Francis Priston Vinalbe. Tur-rnin' full upon thim, he showed thim his mustache, an' sich a mustache! Imperor Willie, acr-ross th' pond, wad turrin grane with invy an' immejately declare anither war on Vinezuela, if he should say it. Th' iffict on th' mass was tremenjous an' ter-rifyin'. Some af thim wint so far as to slide undther th' sates in their terror. 'We are here,' says he, 'to consider blackin'. We hov' all hear-rd af bluin',' he says, 'we will now talk af blackin',' he says. 'Yez must ramimber, me childr-ren,' says he, 'thot th' Univar-rsity af Nor-rth Carolina is an infant nur-rsery. It makes th' br-riny droplits come into me eyes, whin I think thot th' arrival af me las' consignment af Mellin's Food was th' occasion af th' breakin' af me r-rule 581,326, which says thot no one af me little infants shall be waked later than sivin o'clock in th' evenin', unllis it be damed neicssary to administer-r Mrs. Winslow's Soothin' Syrup,' he says, 'an' oh,' says he, 'it makes me blood r-run cold an' th' tip eens af me mustache trumble whin I think thot me little tootsy-wootsies was hauled from their cr-ribs an' blacked. If yez hod only painted 'em blue or red or gr-rane, me esthetic faylins wad not hov' ben so mooch shocked,' he says. 'But f'r hivin's an' yearth's sake, don't black 'em. Make me a promise,' says he, 'that yez will from hinceforth only use sich colors as will be agrayable to th' parints consarned. This blackin', he says, 'must be stopped.' Me frind Vinalbe thin sot down, Pat, amidst wild applause, which came mostly from undther binches an' chairs, an' th' Chief Squealer af th' Marble Amusement Assosachum shtruck oop,

'Pass ar-round th' sterilized milk
An' we'll all take a suck.'

"Th' org'nist hit oop, 'I want to be an angel,' an' th' massmatin' broke oop. I tell yez, Pat, Vinalbe is a gr-ate man.

"On me way out, I run oop against me ould frind Dochter Battle. 'Mornin', says he, with a toothless grin, 'yez name, I believe, is Michael Flaherty. Nice name,' he says. 'Yez grate-grate grandfayther, sivinteen ginerations ramoved, came over from th' ould country in Janu'ry, sivinteen fifty-sax, on Choosday, th' four-rteenth af th' month, arrivin' at twinty-foive minyits an sivinteen siconds past tin o'clock in th' mornin', th' wither bein' cloudy, with mooch snow on th' gr-round. Thince he procaded saxteen-sivinteen ths miles from th' shore an' crieted a house twinty feet by twinty-foive, pintin' sidewise saxty dagrees four-rteen minyits an' foive siconds ayst, an' procaded to hov' sivinteen childr-ren, th' sivinteenth being yez progenitor-r, which makes yez th' foive thousandth sax hundr-red an' fifty-sicond descindant af yez noble ancestor,—which raminds me af a joke I hear-rd last wake about me ould frind an' shtandby Sampson '—I didn't wait, Pat, to hear-r him finish. It is always bist to steer clear af a man who knows more about yez than yez does yezself, for fear that he might call to yez moind some incidint af yez family ricord wherein yez wife broke a rollin'-pin over yez head, or some sich pleasant occasion. So I thought it was toime to lave.

"Fearin' thot me Battle wad prove a thir-rd Bull Run, I hurried into wan af th' buildin's an' oopened a dhure, in order to hide meself undther wan af th' binches. To me complate confusion an' embarishmint, what did I do, Pat, but blunder-r in on me frind Joshuway Gor-re, licturin' to his class in Junior Physics! 'Come in,' says he, takin' off his glasses an' gisturin' with his lift hand, 'we wor jist considerin' th' gr-rate question af infinity,' he says, putting on his glasses an' gisturin' with his right hand. 'Now, me frind, Willie Cain, according to th' Char-rlotte Obser-ver,' says he, takin' off his glasses, clearin' his thr-roat an' makin' a circular gisure with both hands at wanst, 'says that zaro divided by zaro can equal anything, from a South-Say Islander to a br-rass monkey,' he says, combin' his mustache with his glasses; 'but me own pr-ivate opinion is thot me frind Willie Cain got his nose fr-rost-bitten while workin' with zaros, which be th' way accounts fr its color,' iclaimin' thereupon, 'zaro divided by zaro be damned,' which af course wad account fr th' newspaper riport,' says he, puttin' on his glasses an' gisturin' with his lift hand. 'As fr meself,' he says, pullin' off his glasses an' gisturin' with his right hand, 'I belave thot zaro divided by zaro is infinity. This can aysily be proved,' he says, puttin' on his glasses an' makin' anither revolution with both hands, 'by a mithod familiar-r to all af yez, an' which is known as raducin' to th' absurd. Now, to begin,' he says, puttin' on his glasses, clear-rin' his thr-roat an' gisturin' with his lift hand, 'zaro divided by zaro ain't a cow, is it? Wall, if it ain't a cow what in th' name af hivin else can it be but infinity?' This sta-atemint, Pat, was grated with gr-rate applause, to which me frind Joshuway r-rolls his eyes, clears his throat, gistures with both hands, combs his mustache with his glasses, an' bows. An' so he continued, Pat, givin' 'em his lift hand, right hand, both hands, glasess off, glasses on, throat clearin', mustache combin', goo-goo eye makin' licture on infinity to infinity, until waryin' af me cramped position an' ramimberin' me juties as a citizen af th' fifth warrud, I took me departure an' ratur-rned wance more to me wurruk, havin' been mooch benefitted by an' imprised with th' gr-rateness an' gr-randeur af th' Univar-rsity af Nor-rth Carolina. May th' good wurruk go on, is me prayer."

"Amen!" said Pat.

GALLAWAY—"Bird dogs as an aid to Trigonometry."

DR. RAPER—"Violet culture; or the treatment of colts."

LAWRENCE HOLT—"He might have a mind; who knows?"

MARRIOTT—"The evolution of an Easter Egg."

GILMER—"Some day let us hope he will have a thought."

P'ETTY—"Some were born for great things,

Some were born for small;

Some even—'t is not recorded

Why they were born at all."

BUFF SMITH—"A wit with dunces and a dunce with wits."

PARSON SAUNDERS—"Awkward, embarrassed, stiff, without the skill

Of moving gracefully or standing still,

One leg as if suspicious of his brother,

Desirous seems to run away from t' other."

HOLT—"Sentimentally, I am disposed to harmony; but organically I am incapable of tune."

GLENN—"Speak the truth and shame the devil."

GREEN, G.—"The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none."

HOLT, L.—"After you, my dear Alphonse."

TOMLINSON, L.—"Drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."

SIBLEY—"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom, and with all thy getting, get understanding."

PARKER, L. L.—"The true way to be deceived is to think oneself more knowing than others."

CHADWICK—"He has an oar in every man's boat, and a finger in every pie."

LICHTENTHAELER—"A lion among ladies."

MOREHEAD—"The empty vessel makes the greatest sound."

THOLLEY—"Miss Blank, do you believe that the Emersonian Doctrine specifically applied would have any materialistic effect upon the terrestrial inconsistencies that clog and warp the esoteric development of our inner being?"

MISS BLANK—"Oh, I don't know; my mother always uses Syrup of Figs."

GEO. GREENE—"The higher opinion we have of ourselves, the less we should say about it."

CANNON, CONDON, AND BAILEY—"We all live and learn, but some of us live a whole lot more than we learn."

JUDGE MACRAE (examining "Stone" Adams for admission)—"Mr. Adams, have you read Blackstone?"

"No, sir."

"Have you read Clark on Contracts?"

"No, sir."

"Have you read Greenleaf on Evidence?"

"No, sir."

"Well, Mr. Adams, what have you read?"

"I have red hair, sir."

CUMMING—"Wiser in his own conceit than seven men can render a reason."

CANNON—"An elaborate destroyer of time."

HUSKE—"A typical Bunyan."

BRIDGERS—"Ever watchful and suspicious."

RUFFIN—"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew

That one small head could carry all he knew."

LOUIS GHETTO GOODMAN—"With empty face and air uncanny."

HART AND SHEMMIE—"This head would float if this neck were but willing."

BEN LASSITER—"All human things are subject to decay."

ELMER LONG—"No sight was ever seen but that he had seen a bigger;

No story was ever told but that he could tell a better."

COMMONS BOARDERS—"Blessed are they that hunger, for they shall be filled."

DR. HUME—"A scholar and a gentleman."

HAM STEWART—"I wish Dr. Ruffin would explain his explanation."

MOUSE LEWIS—"He never buys what he can borrow,

He always returns (?) it to-morrow."

BLACKWELL—"The saddest words of tongue or pen

Are simply these: I've flunked again."

DR. BATTLE—"There is one animal living that can change his spots."
 THIGPEN AND GOODMAN—"A bad penny always comes back."
 STATON—"Vain as the leaf upon the stem, and fickle as a changeful dream."
 ROSENBACHER—"A tongue is worth little without a brain."
 NOLTHENIUS—"Not pretty, but massive."
 FRESH CLASS—"Too fresh to keep, too green to eat; throw it away."
 JOHNNY GILES—"One who has fallen from grace."
 BO GWYN—"His head 's as full of schemes as an egg is full of meat."
 HOWELL AND CAIN—"So they standeth next to none
 In getting off a beastly pun."
 HOLLY BELL—"I am weary and overwrought with too much study."
 BEST—"His works belie his name."
 SEAT WELLER—"A steam engine in trousers."
 SHEMWELL—"Who wastes so much time in thinking that he thinks."
 LENGTHY JONES—"Long and lean, lank and thin, as one of Satan's cherubin."
 JACOBS—"He aims at nothing and he hits his mark."
 JUDD'S VOICE—"Above the pitch, out of tune, and off the hinges."

 PROFESSOR MCKIE—"Mr. Condon, how can you secure force?"
 CONDON—"With fifteen cents at MacRae's."

 DR. WHITEHEAD—"Mr. Blackwell, can you tell me where the alimentary canal is?"
 BLACKWELL—"Somewhere in New York, near Lake Erie."

 DOC. BERNARD—"Where did I get that translation, Mr. Wilson?"
 WILSON—"Out of the notes."

“Our Printers”

Q Some of our customers have considered it to their interest to call us “Our Printers” ever since they gave us their first order, when we showed them we were interested in their printing beyond the fact that it carried with it a money consideration. We have a pride of our own about “Our Printing,” and this, we doubt not, has had a great deal to do with our success and the reputation our establishment enjoys.

Q Let us add your name to the already long list of those who think of us as “Our Printers.”
